Notes:

The degree period is July 1 through June 30 of each academic year.

The first column counts the total number of majors (includes first and second majors) and the second column represents the number of students in the first column who had more than one major. For example, in 2019/20 there were 59 majors in English, 13 of whom had a major in another subject.

Dash means the major is not offered and has no graduates.

Counts for double majors for 2017-18 may not be consistent with counts in IPEDs completions for that year.

Renaissance Studies major was offered until 2008-09.

Biology major was offered until 2011-12.

Until 2013-14, the Classics Department offered four majors: Classical Civilization, Classics (Greek), Classics (Greek and Latin) and Classics (Latin).

From 2014-15, the Classics Department offered two majors: Classics and Classical Civilization.

Geology and Natural Resources major started in 2014-15.

Chinese and Japanese majors were offered until 2014-15.

Film Studies changed its name into Film and Media Studies in 2015-16.

Neuroscience major started in 2017-18.

Statistics change its name to Statistics and Data Science in 2017-18.

Literature major was offered until 2016-17. Starting 2017-18, the department offered two majors: Literature and Comparative Cultures, and Literature, Comparative.

Computer Science and Economics major started in 2019-20.
